Tecta America Corp. Acquires Delta Roofing

Creates Additional Strength on East Coast for Nation's Largest Roofing Company

Skokie, IL., July 2, 2007—Tecta America Corp., the nation's largest roofing company, announces the acquisition of Delta Roofing, including its four locations in North Billerica and West Bridgewater, MA; Portland, ME; and Jacksonville, FL. The acquisition further enhances Tecta America's position as the nation's largest commercial roofing company with 28 divisions, 51 locations nationwide, and a workforce of more than 3,000 employees.

Originally established in 1988, Delta Roofing's founders saw a need for a top-notch commercial roofing company and have adhered to their mission to be the best in the industry. By joining Tecta America, Delta will be able to provide customers expanded national reach and enhanced service offerings, including solar roofing and roof asset management.

"Delta Roofing's customer base is expanding. To maintain the level of service our customers expect, we knew we needed to deliver national coverage. Tecta is the only company in the United States that is delivering national service under the same ownership, with a level of quality on par with the Delta organization. For us, Tecta was the only choice," said Brett Chapman, Co-President, Delta Holdings LLC.

Mark Santacrose, President and CEO of Tecta America said, “I am very impressed with the organization that Co-Presidents Brett Chapman and Peter Owens have built, and the leadership, talent, and passion they bring to the business. The acquisition gives us significant strength in the Northeast and complements our existing Tecta companies.”

Tecta America will provide the newly acquired operating units with the full scope of Tecta America’s corporate strengths including strong management at the local operating level, increased marketing resources, safety and productivity programs, and solid financial strengths including insurance, bonding and a strong balance sheet.
